

ABSTRACT

In a method and apparatus for encoding a tag with an n-bit binary code one or more predetermined frequency sources are associated with the tag that produce known different respective characteristic frequencies, each of which is associated 5 with a known unique position in the n-bit binary code.